POINTS TO CONSIDER

Designating a beneficiary is one of the most important decisions you will make regarding your life insurance. The designations that you make should clearly reflect your intentions of who will receive the death claim proceeds. We suggest that you review and consider the following points when making changes to your beneficiary designations as well as seeking legal advice.

Minor Beneficiaries

Insurance proceeds cannot be paid to minor beneficiaries. To avoid difficulties with the settlement of a claim, a trustee(s) should be named for all minor children. If a trustee has not been named as of the date of the life insured's death, the proceeds will be paid to the Provincial Public Trustee.

The trustee(s) will be paid the proceeds of the policy to hold in trust for the minor children until a specified age. This age is usually the age of majority (which varies by province) but any age may be requested by the policyowner. If the child is over the specified age as at the date of death of life insured, Wawanesa Life will pay the proceeds directly to that child. If an age is not specified, the proceeds will be paid to the trustee(s) regardless of the child's age.

IN QUEBEC: any amount payable to a minor beneficiary will be paid to the parent(s) or legal guardian(s).

Contingent Beneficiaries

In the event that all primary beneficiaries die before the life insured, death claim proceeds will be paid to the contingent beneficiary. If no contingent beneficiary has been named, the beneficiary becomes the estate of the life insured, except in the case of third party ownership, in which case the policyowner becomes the beneficiary.

To avoid delays in settlement of claims, it is recommended that a contingent beneficiary be named for every policy.

Percentages or Specific Amounts

When percentages or specific amounts have been allocated to each beneficiary, only these amounts can be paid to each beneficiary. Should one of the beneficiaries die before the life insured, his/her portion would be made payable to the estate of the life insured, except in the case of third party ownership, in which case the policyowner becomes the beneficiary. This may not be your intention. In order to avoid this, you should specify that if a beneficiary predeceases the life insured, the surviving beneficiaries will equally divide the unallocated portion. Alternately, you may name a contingent beneficiary for each primary beneficiary.

Designating an Estate

If you are designating your estate as beneficiary, the following should be considered:

- Insurance proceeds payable to the estate are subject to claims from creditors, whereas proceeds payable to a named beneficiary may, in some cases, be protected from creditors.
- In some instances, a Will must be probated, and the costs will vary from province to province. These costs are not incurred if proceeds are payable to a named beneficiary. Probate is not required for a notarial will in the province of Quebec.

Irrevocable Beneficiaries

Prior to making a beneficiary change, the present beneficiary's signature is required in the following instances:

1. if the present beneficiary was designated irrevocably (that is, the policyowner cannot make beneficiary changes without the present beneficiary's consent), or
2. the policy was issued prior to July 1, 1962, and the beneficiary is a member of the preferred class (that is, spouse, father, mother, sister, brother or child).

To name an irrevocable beneficiary, the term "irrevocable" must be indicated on the form. All future transactions affecting the policy will require both your signature and that of the irrevocable beneficiary. Where irrevocable beneficiary is incapable of giving consent, policy owner can apply for court order permitting the policy owner to deal with the contract without consent. To ensure that future requests are correctly authorized, we suggest that the irrevocable beneficiary also sign the form at this time.

IN QUEBEC: designation of the owner's spouse (married or civil Union) is irrevocable, unless the owner stipulated the designation to be revocable.

Beneficiary Disclaiming of Proceeds

A beneficiary may disclaim his or her right to proceeds by filing written notice at Wawanesa Life's Executive Office. This action is irrevocable. Proceeds payable under the contract would be payable as if the beneficiary predeceased the Insured/Annuitant.

Corporate Owned Signature Requirements

Provide supporting documentation showing signing authority for the company: a letter on company letterhead showing all individuals with signing authority, signed by either the owner, president or CEO of the company and dated within the last 12 months.
